Doug and Becky Grant, owners of Cooke's Drive-In, were presented with an award in recognition of their community involvement and many efforts to help various organizations and the city as a whole during the Nov. 1 meeting of the Pleasanton City Council.

City Administrator Tim Staton told the council and those gathered that the Grants had been continuously involved with the community at large since buying their business and cited several organizations and entities they have helped, such as Pleasanton High School and the Linn County Children's Coalition.

Staton then noted that the monthly Cruise Nights brought people into the city where they then spent money and the movie nights were provided by the Grants free of charge to anyone who chose to attend, giving local folks and kids an evening out on a regular basis to see contemporary films.

"They have facilitated other events as well, such as their haunted house and recently the Cop on Top fundraiser for the Linn County Christmas Express," said Staton, "and not least of all the General Pleasanton Days' car show they have held for the last three years."

In recognition of those efforts to help and bond the community, Staton presented the award thanking the Grants for all they do and have done.
